ABOUT

YOU MUST KNOW!

TADOBA

Tadoba Andhari National Park is a renowned tiger reserve located in the Chandrapur district of Maharashtra, India. Spanning over an area of approximately 625 square kilometers, it is one of the largest and oldest national parks in the state. The park derives its name from the Tadoba Lake and the Andhari River, which flow through its terrain, enhancing its natural beauty.

Tadoba Andhari National Park is celebrated for its healthy population of Bengal tigers, making it one of the best places in India to observe and appreciate these majestic creatures in their natural habitat.

Apart from tigers, the park is home to a diverse array of wildlife, including leopards, sloth bears, wild dogs, Indian gaur (bison), sambar deer, spotted deer, and various species of reptiles and birds. The park also boasts a significant population of marsh crocodiles, which can be spotted basking in the sun along the water bodies.

Conservation efforts in Tadoba Andhari National Park are focused on protecting the fragile ecosystem and maintaining a sustainable balance between wildlife conservation and tourism. The park serves as a crucial habitat for endangered species and contributes to the preservation of India's natural heritage.

Overall, Tadoba Andhari National Park stands as a captivating destination, offering a unique and immersive experience for those seeking to connect with nature and witness the incredible diversity of wildlife in their natural realm.
